Aglet Theatre Company's production of "Ghost-Writer," a one-act, three-person play by Michael Bollinger, opens for two performances Saturday, Dec. 15 at Dewey Memorial Hall in Sheffield, Mass.

The play is about the relationship between a writer, Mr. Woolsey, played by Macey Levin, his typist, Myra, played by Carla Lewis, to whom he dictates (or tries to) and the writer's wife, Mrs. Woolsey, played by Deann Halper, who tries to replace the typist, although she does not know how. Not in any way. Doors open this Saturday at 1:30 and 7p.m. for refreshments and the readings begin at 2 and 7:30 p.m. For information and reservations, call 860-435-6928, or go to www.aglettheatre.net.
